Government courses:

The Department of Government offers courses at several different levels:

- Prerequisite: A course in the statistics and methods of social sciences (GOVT 10).
- Introductory courses: The Department offers four courses (GOVT 003, 004, 005, and 006), designed to provide an overview of each of the four subfields in Government: American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory & Law. Introductory courses are generally intended to be taken as the first courses in the major and usually not later than the end of a student's second year.
- Midlevel courses: Courses that explore specific topics in Government in greater depth. These courses are assigned numbers between 11 and 69.
- Seminar courses: Advanced, discussion-based, research- and writing-intensive courses. These courses are assigned numbers between 80 and 86. Seminars are generally intended to be taken in a student's third or fourth years.
- Upper-level courses: Any course except for introductory or prerequisite courses.

For government course descriptions and the most current course schedules and Honors Program requirements, please consult the ORC/Catalog, the Timetable of Class Meetings, and the Government website

Economics courses:

- It is important to check for prerequisites before enrolling in courses and while planning your major.
- Most economics courses require ECON 1 and 10 as prerequisites, and additional prerequisites are common.
- For economics course descriptions and the most current course schedules, please consult the ORC/Catalog, the Timetable of Class Meetings, and the Economics Department website

Philosophy courses:

- It is important to check the prerequisites for the courses before enrolling in courses and while planning your major. Courses above PHIL 10 require one intro PHIL course. Any PHIL 50 requires two previous philosophy courses.
- For philosophy course descriptions and the most current course schedules, please consult the ORC/Catalog, the Timetable of Class Meetings, and the Philosophy Department website.

Special Provisions:

1. Students should be aware that transfer credits may not qualify for the modified majors. Transfer credits for courses in the Economics Department are never accepted for the Government Modified with Economics major. Students considering using transfer credits for any of the modified majors must contact the Government department to verify that the course will be accepted.
2. Every year, we revise and update the information available in this study form. Sometimes the departments make changes between the revisions. Please check the Government, Economics, and Philosophy Departments' websites for updated information.
3. If you have questions about the PPE majors or course selection, please contact: For academic-related questions: Prof. Lucas Swaine (Lucas.A.Swaine@dartmouth.edu) or for questions about the declaration process: Roberta Seaver (Roberta.C.Seaver@dartmouth.edu)
